About Late Justice P. B. Sawant

Late Justice P. B. Sawant
Former Judge, Supreme Court of India

Born on 30th June, 1930, Late Justice P.B. Sawant had an illustrious career in legal field where he made significant contribution to the development of Indian law and jurisprudence. During his tenure as a judge of Supreme Court of India and High Court of Bombay, Justice Sawant had delivered numerous landmark judgements addressing crucial issues related to human rights, personal liberty, constitutional rights and social justice. As a strong believer of progressive interpretation of constitution, he emphasized the importance of adapting constitutional principles to changing social and economic conditions to ensure justice for all. Through his progressive judgements like Indira Sawhney V Union of India and S.R. Bommai V Union of India, Justice Sawant, exercised long lasting impact on Indian legal system by protecting fundamental rights, promoting social justice and setting important precedents for future cases. His judgements have focused on human rights, social justice and protection of vulnerable sections of society. Justice Sawant was also a prolific author and lecturer. His extensive writing on legal and socio-political topics reflects his deep understanding of legal principles and their interplay with social issues. After his retirement, he was associated with various social organizations and worked relentlessly for the protection of civil liberties and human rights till his last breath. His legacy as a respected jurist and advocate of social justice will continue to inspire the future generations on India.

Moot Proposition

Indusland Foundation for Democracy v. Union of Indusland

1. Indusland, a country in South Asia observed a Parliamentary Form of Democracy for more than seven decades. It has adopted a written constitution greatly influenced by the cardinal principles of civilized and democratic society from all over the world. The democratic setup in Indusland is considered as one of the most successful ones among the countries that gained independence and adopted democracy after the Second World War. The written constitution and its cherished principles have played a significant role in protecting the democracy of Indusland. The multiparty system, fraternity, secularism, federalism, justice, equality, liberty, dignity, judicial review, and recognition of the human rights of the citizens are some of the key features of the Constitution.
2. The parliamentary system of government is the 'Basic Structure of the Constitution' of Indusland. In parliamentary democracy, political parties plays a vital role in bringing together like-minded people with the same political ideology. In a country like Indusland, a multiparty system ensures participative democracy by allowing people to participate in the election process. Fair, free and transparent elections are sine qua non of the democracy. To ensure free and fair elections, the Constitution of Indusland has provided for an independent and impartial body in the form of the Election Commission of Indusland. In the Constituent Assembly, it was unanimously accepted that the Election Commission should be free from executive influence to work independently.
3. To ensure effective superintendence, direction and control of elections, the Constitution of Indusland has provided for the Election Commission. It conducts elections at national and state level. The Constitution initially provided for the commission comprising of only one election commissioner but the Election Commissioner Amendment Act 1989, made it a multi-member body. The constitutional validity of the said Act is affirmed by the Federal Court of Indusland.

4. Indusland Foundation for Democracy (hereinafter IFD) is a reputed Non-Governmental Organisation (NGO) working for the protection of the basic human rights of the masses within the legal and constitutional framework. IFD is involved in creating awareness amongst the people about rights and is internationally acclaimed for its research activities. To achieve its objective the IFD conducts various activities such as training camps, long marches and has filed many Public Interest Litigations in the constitutional courts of Indusland.
5. The present Public Interest Litigation by IFD is an outcome of its research on malpractices in the general election of Loksabha and the elections of two state legislative assemblies in December 2023. Serious allegations of several malpractices by political parties in these elections harmed the image of the Election Commission as an independent and impartial functionary. It was further alleged that the commission was unable to fulfill its constitutional responsibility as it failed to control malpractices such as bogus voting, impersonations and corruption during elections.

The IFD also pointed out certain lacunas relating to the recent enactment by the Parliament of Indusland i.e. Chief Election Commissioner and other Election Commissioners (Appointment, Conditions of Service and Term of Office) Act, 2023 (hereinafter the Act of 2023).

6. The IFD further pointed out that the internal working of political parties is not as per the spirit of the constitution. There are issues relating to their timely internal elections for various top positions in the organization as elections are not conducted as prescribed by the constitution of their party. The IFD also urged in its petition that considering the importance of political parties in parliamentary democracy there is a dire need for the Election Commission's supervision over the internal elections of registered political parties under their respective constitutions. It was asserted that such supervision would ensure inner-party democracy in each political party. As per a study and survey conducted by the IFD, almost all resisted political parties are either run by two or three individuals known as 'High Command' or controlled by family-centric politics. The IFD condemned this 'High Command Culture' as it is going against the very basic principle of democratic polity.
7. The IFD has also criticized the eligibility criteria provided under Section 5 of the said Act of 2023. The Section provided that 'the Chief Election Commissioner and other Election Commissioners shall be appointed from amongst the persons who are holding or have held a post equivalent to the rank of Secretary to the Government of India'. As per the petitioner, this provision prohibits the entry of multiple talents into the Election Commission of Indusland by providing experience in administration as a mandatory requirement.

8. The petitioner has also prayed for an amendment in the said Act to provide for the mandatory cooling-off period of two years for civil servants to join the commission. In support, it was argued that as civil servants come into close contact with executives, it may lead to undue influence, favoritism, or bias on the part of civil servants and the cooling-off period will ensure the independent and impartial working of the commission.
9. The petition also challenged the selection process of the election commissioners, specifically Section 6 and Section 7 of the Act of 2023. The recommendation Law Commission of Indusland and the recent Constitutional Bench Judgment of the Federal Court of Indusland to appoint the Chief Justice of Indusland as a member of the Selection Committee is not observed in Section 7. It was further contended the exclusion of the judiciary from the selection process would make the entire selection process more executive-oriented making it vulnerable to the governmental process. It was further underlined that many provisions of the Act of 2023 violate the guarantee of free and fair elections which is the 'Basic Structure of the Constitution'.
10. In response, the Union of Indusland argued that the eligibility criteria for the appointment of election commissioner provided under the Act aligns with established practice and is reasonable as vast management of elections requires first-hand administrative experience at the top level. Further, the cooling-off period was also said to be unnecessary as it may lead to reluctance on the part of senior bureaucrats to take any official responsibility after two years of retirement.
11. Regarding the demand for the superintendence of the internal election of registered political parties by the Election Commission, the respondent vehemently contended it to be an unfeasible measure leading only to extra burden. The existing mechanism for the internal election of political parties is advocated to be sufficient.
12. To the allegation of exclusion of the Chief Justice of Indusland as a selection committee member, the respondent argued that the Chief Justice of Indusland was never a part of the Selection Committee that appoints the Election Commissioner. The inclusion of the Chief Justice in the collegium for appointing Election Commissioners was a mere temporary arrangement. Further, it was also asserted that once the commissioners get appointed, their working is free from executive control and the Constitution has given enough protection to them for the same. It was also argued by the Union of Indusland that the Act of 2023 enacted by the Parliament was as per the Constitutional Mandate and specifically it complies with the directions given by the Federal Court in a recent judgment. The respondent argued that the mechanism provided under the Act of 2023 guarantees free and fair elections and protects the 'Basic Structure of Constitution' of Indusland.

The matter is put before the Federal Court for a final hearing. The Hon'ble Court will hear the arguments of both parties on the following important issues.

- 1. Whether the eligibility criteria provided in Section 5 of the Act of 2023 prohibits the entry of multiple talents into the Election Commission of Indusland?
- 2. Whether the cooling-off period for civil servants before joining the commission will help the Election Commission to work more independently and impartially?
- 3. Whether the superintendence of the internal election of registered political parties by the Election Commission is necessary to ensure inner party democracy?
- 4. Whether the Chief Justice of Indusland should be a part of the Selection Committee to appoint the Election Commissioner to ensure that the Commission is free from executive control?
- 5. Whether the Act of 2023 in toto violate the guarantee of free and fair elections as a 'Basic Structure of the Constitution'?

Note:-

- Indusland is a country like India and its laws/rules/regulations/judgments are pari passu to that of India.
